Prince Bismarck couldn't attend Kaiser William's birthday party, but he sent his regrets. The probabilities are that the old man would prefer that the young man never had a birthday.

The New Orleans Picayune has an editorial on the snow madness which developed in that town with the late big fall of snow. It has no reference to the madness of the people who were pelted with snowballs.

There is a bill before the Pennsylvania Legislature to appropriate $150,000 for the erection of a hospital for consumptives in some part of the State having an elevation of at least 2,000 feet above tidewater.

Mayor Strong, of New York, refuses to let Boss Platt collar him, and the reason he kicks against Platt is because he hopes to fix up his State delegation for McKinley, while Platt is trying to fix the wires for Reed.

The example of building good roads is catching. Fayette county, in Kentucky, has so improved its roads that it drew the trade from adjoining counties, which in self defense have been compelled to follow its example.

The New Orleans States denounces "the ruffianism" displayed by snowballers during the snow craze, in which people were pelted with balls as hard as chunks of ice. Whether this was ruffianism or not it was rough on the victims.

It is reported from Honolulu that President Dole is opposed to capital punishment for treason. The "Sons of the Missionaries" should not show a blood-thirsty disposition in dealing with the crowd they knocked out so easily in that little racket.

Three of the biggest guns in the United States will be placed at the Golden Gate to protect the entrance to the harbor of San Francisco. The guns are about forty feet long, and the bore big enough for two ordinary sized men to crawl into abreast.

Princess Pauline, the Holland midget, the smallest womaa in the world, who arrived in New York December 22nd, died there last Thursday of bronchitis. She was nineteen years old and exactly seventeen inches high. Her remains were sent back to Holland.

Seventy-five per cent. of the territory of Alabama is under strict prohibition laws and it is said a thirsty denizen would have to get a search warrant to find a drink. There is a movement now to confine the sale of liquors to incorporated towns having a police force.

A gentleman who has spent many years in China said in Washington the other day that before the Emperor would see Pekin taken by the Japanese he would pile dead Chinamen so high around it that the Japs couldn't climb over them. But how could he get them to stand long enough to be piled so high? Thus far they have demonstrated only their capacity to run.

The two names most mentioned for the mission to Mexico are Senator Ransom's and Hon. W. L. Wilson's. Both have strong backing and both are in high favor at the White House, so that it may be a kind of nip-and-tuck between them. Mr. Wilson, however, has been on pretty intimate terms with the Administration and this may have its influence in making the appointment, all other things being equal.

The Atlanta Journal of last Saturday was a rattling edition of forty pages, with lots of pictures in it. A considerable part of it was edited by women exclusively. Without intending any reflection on the masculine pencil pushers who do the regular heavy and light work on it, this number was the best we have ever seen.

The visitors to the Atlanta Exposition will have no difficulty in taking a fly, provided the machines work. No less than ten Tennessee inventors, who think they have solved the problem, will have flying machines there. There are no flies on Tennessee.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT.

The Plan Agreed Upon by the Rep.-Pop. Committee of Fourteen—The Republican Ultimatum Accepted.

The Raleigh News Observer gives the following account of the Rep-Pop. caucus Monday night on the county government question:

* * * But the Republicans know they cannot have it all their own way, and so they agreed last night to submit an ultimatum to the Populists. It is Senator Fortune's plan that he has advocated as the only basis of compromise. It provides that two commissioners shall be elected by the popular vote in each county in the State, and then, upon the petition of 200 land owners in any county the Governor shall appoint a Board of Audit and Finance, consisting of two members. This board will be given the power to veto all expenditures and other financial transactions of the commissioners. It is provided that the Board of Audit and Finance shall be composed of members of political parties different from the Board of County Commissioners. Senator Fortune believes this will prevent his rascally Republican brethren from stealing the eastern counties by giving Democrats the veto power upon their actions.

At a late hour last night it was learned that, in spite of their loud professions that the Populists had surrendered, horse, foot and dragoons, and accepted the ultimatum of the Republicans. They make only one condition, and that is that at least four persons, constituting the Board of Commissioners and Board of Audit and Finance, shall agree on all questions that come before them, the two Boards acting jointly.

* * * * * Judge Russell stated without hesitation that there was no chance of their coming together, and Mr. French said in the hearing of a prominent Republican that the only thing to do was "to agree to disagree." Hunter, of Madison, thought there was about as much chance of the Republicans in his section voting cumulation as for a Democrat.

One thing was settled and admitted at the meeting and it was this: That the plan if submitted now to the General Assembly would go by the board on the first ballot.

The Populists came away utterly discomforted and confounded, so much so that all thought of carrying through cumulation as originally conceived has been abandoned.

Baptist Association Organized.

The committee from an adjourned meeting which was appointed to draft resolutions for the purpose of organizing a Baptist Sunday School Association for New Hanover county, met Monday night at 8 o'clock in the First Baptist Church.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. J. H. McDougald. After devotional exercises, the minutes were read by Mr. G. E. Leftwich.

Rev. Will B. Oliver addressed the meeting, explaining the object of the Association.

The Association was then organized, and the following officers elected: James Calder, president; J. S. Canaday, vice president; G. E. Leftwich, secretary; Benj. F. Murphy, treasurer.

The President made an address explaining workings of Associations of this kind in other places. Speeches were made by Messrs. J. H. McDougald, Jesse Canaday, W. Parker, W. B. Oliver, G. E. Leftwich, R. M. Wescott, W. C. Peterson and S. G. Hall.

The Association will meet Monday night after the third Sunday in each month, at some one of the churches composing its body.

Pastors of Churches in the Association were elected as members ex officio.

The Association then adjourned to meet in the First Baptist Church Monday night, the 18th of March, at 8 o'clock.

Wilmington Minstrels.

Mr. Henry W. Angel, who appears with the Wilmington Minstrel Troupe next Monday night is without a superior in his impersonator of the ante-bellum darky.

The troupe have associated with them on this occasion Mr. Wiley T. Johnson, who will give some of his delightful impersonations. Mr. Johnson has that peculiar happy style which always takes with people, and his "whistle medley" is something entirely new to this section.

Mr. Jas. H. Cowan and Mr. B. W. Marshall, the "infant end men," are great, and will surprise with their songs and funny jokes.

The programme as a whole is a delightful one, and promises two and a half hours of solid fun and music. Remember it is the last show before Lent.

The box-sheet will open at Yates' Friday morning.

Death of Mrs. J. Allison Hankins.

Mrs. Lou Hankins, second wife of Mr. J. Allison Hankins, passed away yesterday morning after a lingering illness of about two years at their residence on Fourth street near Bladen. She was a devoted and esteemed member of Grace M. E. church. Her remains were carried to the family burying ground at Mount Olive, N. C., her native home. The many friends of Mr. Hankins extend their sympathies in his sad bereavement.

On account of "A Week of Old Time Southern Sports," Southern Pines, N. C., February 18th to 22nd inclusive, the Seaboard Air Line will sell round trip tickets to that point at reduced rates, based on one first-class fare for the round trip. Rate from Wilmington, $3 85. Tickets on sale February 17th to 22nd inclusive, with final limit for return February 23th, 1895.

Schooner Aground.

A telegram from Southport yesterday says that the vessel aground on Frying-pan shoals is the schooner Greenleaf Johnson, Woodruff master, from Brunswick, Ga., bound to New York with cargo of lumber. The Johnson is a large three-master, 371 tons, and was at this port a short time ago. A tug from Southport is trying to get her off the shoals.

Bill for the relief of E D Gaddy, late Sheriff of Anson county, passed third reading.

Bill to amend the homestead law so as to provide that when the owner makes a conveyance of the property it may be subject to any judgment formerly docketed against it was taken up and was explained by Mr Adams. Under this bill the homestead is exempt from execution so long as it remains in the possession of the original homesteader. After some discussion, Mr Paddison moved to lay the bill on the table, but withdrew it for Mr Moody to speak in favor of it. Mr Fowler moved to make the bill a special order for Thursday, but this motion failed. Then Mr Candler moved to lay the bill upon the table and Mr Adams demanded the ayes and noes. The bill was tabled by a vote of 26 to 19.

At 12 o'clock the anti-liquor bill, which was the special order for that hour, was taken up. It proposes to make unlawful the sale, barter or giving away any wines or liquors in the State unless the question be first submitted to the vote of the town or city in which it is proposed to issue license. Mr Candler, the introducer of the bill, first took the floor in advocacy of it. Amendments were offered and accepted making the bond of liquor dealers $1,000 instead of $1,500, and making a majority of the votes cast sufficient instead of a majority of the registered voters.

The House met at 10 o'clock, the Speaker in the chair, and prayer was offered by Rev Dr Cole, of the city of Raleigh.

QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE.

Mr Campbell, of Cherokee, arose to a question of privilege and read an article from the Evening Press speaking of him as "Representative Campbell, of Hanging Dog township," and charging him with "carring his freakish ideas" in the lobby of the Yarboro House and announcing himself a candidate for Governor. He said the paper was run by three men, and of course they were men of brains. As far as the Governorship was concerned, he could not afford to canvass the State for Governor. He suggested that the name of the paper be changed to "Hermaphrodite," as he called it. This ended the tempest in the tin can, and the statesman from "Hanging Dog" sat down vindicated.

THE ELECTION BILL.

At 11 o'clock the regular order, the election bill, was called up by Mr Lusk, and two hours were awarded to the Democratic side. The bill is the one that has been printed and is the one agreed upon by the Rep-Pop caucus. Mr Ray read a very humorous speech on the bill which caused much merriment. Messrs Smith of Gates and Winborne also made strong speeches against the bill, pointing out its many defects.

The Democrats offered sundry amendments, but the opposition persisting voted them down.

Mr Winborne offered an amendment requiring white paper and no device. It was defeated by 69 to 33.

Mr Smith, of Gates, an amendment that required that where two or more parties combine and co-operate that they shall be entitled to but one registrar and one judge of election. This was defeated by the same vote.

The bill passed its second reading.

[Special Star Telegram.]

After the adoption of an amendment to the anti Liquor bill exempting druggists, a motion was made by Senator Starbuck to table the bill. The vote resulted in a tie—21 to 21—and President Doughton voted against tabling the bill, so the motion to table failed to pass and the bill was left in statu quo. The Senate adjourned without further action upon it.

After the close of debate in the House on the six per cent. interest bill, it passed a second reading without amendment by a vote of 59 to 33 and will come up to-morrow on third reading.

The House passed a resolution that the Legislature attend the Newbern Fair, leaving here Thursday and returning Saturday.

Bills were passed allowing pensions to widows whose husbands have died since the late war of wounds received during the war; to prohibit the killing of fish with dynamite; to repeal the charter of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians; to prohibit county officers from holding office more than two terms in succession.

Death of Mrs. Cunningham.

The Raleigh News and Observer of yesterday says:

Mrs. Louisa Cunninggim, the beloved wife of Rev. W. H. Cunninggim, died at her residence on Person street Sunday morning at 8 40 o'clock. She was 68 years old and had been an invalid for a number of years. Rev. and Mrs. Cunninggim lived in Raleigh just after the late war, and kept a hotel here. Later they moved to Chapel Hill. Until the beginning of the present year they have lived in Durham, moving back to Raleigh last January.

Mrs. Cunninggim leaves three children; Rev. W. L. Cunninggim, Secretary of the North Carolina Conference and pastor of Fifth Street Church, Wilmington; Jesse Lee Cunninggim, now a divinity student at Vanderbilt University, and Mrs. R. W. Bailey, wife of Rev. R. W. Bailey, pastor of West Durham Methodist Church. All of these were here when she died. Hers was a life of Christian purity and of sweet service and helpfulness.

Her brother-in-law, Rev. Dr. J. A. Cunninggim, Presiding Elder of Durham district, arrived yesterday.

The funeral was held from the residence at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Rev. D. H. Tuttle conducting the service.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEB. 20, 1895.

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING.

The attention that the South has attracted among the New England mill men as a field for the manufacture of cotton goods will doubtless lead to the investment of much New England money in Southern mills. This is something in which the South is interested and upon which she is to be congratulated—provided there isn't too much of it. It is a good thing, but there may be too much of a good thing.

As there are two sides to nearly all questions so there are to this, and while we may lay ourselves liable to the suspicion of a lack of progressiveness, we confess that we do not want to see anything like a rush of New England mill men Southward. We have no prejudice against the New Englander, nor the incomer from any other section, but on the contrary a welcome for him or anyone else who has capital, brains or muscle to devote to the development of our resources or the upbuilding of our industries, but this is on the assumption that the men who bring their capital, their brains or their muscle intend to identify themselves with the South, take an interest in her advancement and not look upon her as a lemon to be squeezed or an orange to be sucked, to make all the money they can out of her and transfer their gains for the enrichment of some other section.

We will illustrate this, although the illustration may not be altogether apposite in every respect. For several years there has been considerable of a movement of Western lumbermen Southward. They have bought up and hold and are still buying up large tracts of our forest lands. Some people have rejoiced at this and seeing the lumbering plants established by some of these men and the amount of lumber shipped by them, have regarded them as valuable agents in our industrial progress. We could never see it in that light, could never see the reason for congratulating anyone on selling a thousand dollars' worth of trees (with the land thrown in) for a hundred dollars. Nor could we see where the South was to be congratulated when nine out of ten of these lumbermen come simply for the purpose of cutting down the forest they buy, and putting what they make out of it to their bank accounts somewhere else. While some of them may have, the majority of them have no interest whatever in the future of the South, but have simply invested their money to make all they can out of it in the shortest possible time and then pull out themselves.

So also with the non-resident capitalists who buy our gold, coal and other mines, our marble, granite and other quarries. They pay the purchase money, (which is generally small compared with the value of the property purchased.) That benefits the owner who sells. They give employment to workmen. That benefits the workmen and to some extent the community in which the workmen live, but that is all. The profits from the properties worked go to add to the bank accounts of the non-resident operators.

It must not be inferred from this that we are opposed to enterprises of this kind being operated by non-resident capitalists, for we are not; but we confess that we would prefer to see them operated, if they could be, by home capital, for then the money made out of them would stay in the South and be added to what we have in her upbuilding. But it is better that enterprises be conducted by non-residents than not at all.

While a parity does not exist in all respects between these and the mill operators, it does to some extent. The mill men, it is true, must invest considerable money in putting up plants, which become a permanency. The larger the plant the more money it represents, and the more taxable values it makes for the State, while it may also add to the value of adjacent lands. Thus far the State is a gainer. The larger it is the more people it employs. Thus far it benefits more people and the communities with which these people trade. They also consume large quantities of cotton and thus benefit the planter by giving him a larger home market.

But we have in the South now a great many mills, which are increasing in number annually, giving employment to thousands of people. These mills are distributed through the South, mainly in the Piedmont belt, in the three States of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. Most of these are what are called small mills, operated by men who have a limited capital, nearly all of whom are Southern men. While the number of mills is increasing largely, continuously and rapidly, so is the capacity of many of those in operation. Nearly all have prospered, and give work annually to more people. Every dollar made by these mills comes back to the South, and remains here to be added to the money we already had, and is available for the upbuilding of this section. It helps to enrich our own people, and adds to the wealth and power of the South.

Suppose there should be a great influx of Northern money to be invested in the establishment of large cotton manufactories by men experienced in the business how long would it be before there would be competition between the Southern mills as there is now between the Northern mills, and in that case wouldn't the men who have the longest pole knock the persimmon? In the event of such competition between our small mills, which now have no competition, and the strong new comers with long experience and plenty of capital and markets for their goods already established, wouldn't the small mill have to succumb, and thus a great industry which is annually and steadily growing greater pass from the hands of our own people into the hands of their new but more robust rivals? It would then be simply a question of time when the wheels of the small mills would stop and the industry be transferred to the central points selected by the capitalists, and instead of many small mills distributed through that portion of the South best adapted to the industry we would have fewer but larger mills in manufacturing towns, as they have in the North.

We do not think there is any danger of this for we do not apprehend any rush of Northern mill men to the South, although a considerable number of them may within the next few years avail themselves of the advansages the South offers; but we are pointing out how a present benefit might under certain conditions grow to be an injury.

MINOR MENTION.

In his remarks in the Senate Monday, Senator Sherman showed an unusual amount of candor in commenting upon the strictures made on the President for the contract with the parties who bought the $62,000,000 bonds, but at the same time expressed the opinion that the money lenders took advantage of their opportunity and made a good bargain for themselves, which is doubtless the fact. But the gold monopolists always do that, and the American monopolist is about as apt to do it as the foreign money lender is. Mr. Sherman was right, however, when he said that the men who lends money to the Government has the right to demand that he be paid back in the same kind of money lent, and the Government could not consistently nor honestly refuse to respect that demand and comply with it. To refuse to do it would be to forfeit credit and put itself in a position to be unable to borrow the money it needed, if borrowing should become necessary. The men who bought the bonds which have caused this discussion knew it was the avowed policy of this Government to pay its obligations in the best kind of money and that it has been doing this all along, very much against its convenience, and the only apparent reason why they should make a conditional bargain is the possible fear that the silver party might eventually prevail, the policy of the Government be changed, and the obligations of the Government be paid in silver instead of gold. But in that event a resolution passed now committing the Government to pay in gold wouldn't be worth the paper it was written on. But if instead of wrangling over questions like this Congress would take a common sense, business view of the situation, and pass a law requiring import duties to be paid in gold, there would be little occasion to borrow gold, and sharpers at home or abroad would be deprived of the opportunity to take advantage of the Government.

* * *

There is no Government on the face of the earth whose credit is any better than the credit of this Government, and there is no earthly reason why there should be any uneasiness about it anywhere. The people have confidence in it, and in their business transactions with each other, one of its dollars, whether it be in paper or coin, is as good and passes current as another, and on the counter of the grocer or merchant, or at the stall of the butcher, a dollar in paper will buy as much as a dollar in gold. It is only when it comes to the wealthy money-lenders who buy bonds to draw interest or to speculate upon that we find a difference made. If they were as patriotic as the people there would be no trouble in the Treasury, and this Government would have no occasion to ask loans of money to meet its obligations. The last statement issued by the Secretary of the Treasury shows that between December 1st and February 2nd the withdrawals of gold from the Treasury amounted to $80,786,802, of which only $36,852,359 was exported, the running $43,933,943 being hoarded. Why are all these millions withdrawn from the Treasury and locked up in the vaults of the big banks? They didn't need it. There was no demand for it at home and they did not need it to send abroad. The only apparent reason why they did so was to pinch the Treasury, wipe out the gold reserve and compel the Government to borrow that same gold from them to replenish the reserve which they had depleted. And yet they talk about preserving the credit of the Government, about the obligation to pay its debts in the best kind of money, etc,. when they are doing their level best to embarrass it and to jeopardize its credit abroad. That may be business from their standpoint, but in the eyes of the plain citizen it is both disreputable and unpatriotic. There is not much difference when you get down to the bottom between the American Shylock and the money lender of Venice.

Horses have got so cheap out in the West now that they have quit banging horse thieves. The disposition rather is to encourage them to steal, as the easiest way of getting rid of the horses.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—The man who has lost more by the redent developments in Congress on the financial question than any other is Thomas B Reed. To day there is hardly a real friend of sound money in this country, be he Democrat or Republican, who is not ready to thank God that Grover Cleveland instead of Tom Reed is President of the United States.—LouisvilleCourier Journal, Dem.

—Many farmers complain that they have to pay five or eight per cent. a month for money to get it from the banks and then must mortgage several times the value in real estate to get it. The trouble is that they have gotten into the hands of the money lenders. It is better to live on cold potatoes and crusts than to borrow money for speculative farming. Better eat locusts and wild honey and wear a suit of cotton bagging than to mortgage the soul and estate to the Devil, as Tom Walker did.—Norfolk Landmark, Dem,

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

—Stanly News: Will May, colored, was recaptured last Friday evening after his escape from the burning jail in the morning before day, and was immediately tried before J. W. Bostian, Esq., for burning the jail. He was committed to jail on the charge. The evidence against him is circumstantial but very suspicious to say the least of it.

—Mecklenburg Times: Messrs. W. C. Traywick, Walter and Louie Cruse were out walking Sunday evening in the woods near the water works station. They saw the dog they had with them trying to unearth something. When they examined the object they found it to be a common soap box and in the box was the skeleton of a child. They at once reported it to the authorities.

—Red Springs Citizen: On last Monday morning at 4 o'clock, Miss Minnie Kesler, sister of the be oved pastor of the Baptist Church, Rev. M. L. Kesler, gently fell on the sleep that knows no waking. —Mr. Geo. B McLeod was appointed by the commissioners last Monday to be sheriff of Robeson county, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. J. McK. Alford. This appointment settles the contest for that office, as Mr. McLeod is a son-in-law of Mr. E. R. Proctor, Sr —On last Monday night week, Mr. J W. Wilkes, of Bowmore, locked his store and went to his supper. He returned in a few minutes and found things, apparently, as he left them, but the next morning he discovered that about $33 had been taken from a cigar box in which he kept the railroad money. A colored boy began to spend money pretty freely the next day, and Mr. Wilkes induced him, by a little persuasion, to tell the whole story. He, in company with another young thief, had climbed in at one of the windows and pocketed the change, which was done in less time than it takes to print it. Fourteen dollars of the money was recovered, and both boys were captured and committed to jail.

The late Mrs. Josephine M. Bacchus of Brooklyn left to each of her two daughters a diamond to be worn in a ring on the third finger of the right hand, that by this the daughters might always be reminded of the three virtues she most wished them to possess—truth, purity and patience.

There were fairy tales afloat a year ago of the fabulous sum paid by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt for a Persian rug purchased at the World's fair. The facts of the case are that she paid $16,000 for one. It is about 12 feet square in shades of dull blues, grays and yellows—a "Tacuoe carpet" is its correct name.

An Illinois Girl In Washington.

I sat next an Illinois girl in the house gallery and marked the manner of her speech, which was strange to a Washington ear. She did not slight a single "r." The broad English "a" eastern people affect was unknown to her. She asked me what time congress "took up" and when it "let out." She spoke of a brook in her home and called it a "branch." She said it seemed so funny to get six car tickets for "9 bits," and she told me she had not attended the opening of congress because she "could not get to go," but that she meant to hear just as many great speeches as she could "get to hear." Then she excused herself and went away, as she said she had "some trading to do for ma."—Washington Post.

Tying the Knot.

One part of the wedding ceremony among the Babylonians was very significant. The priest took a thread from the garment of the bride and another from the garment of the bridegroom and tied them into a knot, which he gave the bride. This is probably the origin of the modern saying about tying the knot in regard to marriage.

BRECKINRIDGE.

It is to be hoped that Colonel Breckinridge will make enough from his lecture tour to pay the Pollard judgment.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Madeline Pollard will be a pretty old woman when she gets that $15,000 if she collects it from Colonel Breckinridge's gate receipts.—St. Paul Globe.

It is said Madeline Pollard is unable to obtain any employment, and it is possible that Mr. Breckinridge will soon be in the same fix.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Madeline Pollard is making a claim on the box office receipts from Colonel Breckinridge's lectures. An advertising agent calls this "a rake off on a silver tongue."—New York World.

Willie Breckinridge's lecture prospects are cloudy since Madeline insists on attaching the gate money. This is another proof of the constancy of a woman's attachment.—New York Recorder.

Madeline Pollard will in time learn that the Breckinridge box office receipts were just large enough to pay official fees in each instance, and that she is constantly running in debt to lawyers.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

Miss Pollard's idea of taking possession of the box office receipts at Colonel Breckinridge's lectures ought to serve as a discourager of Breckinridge eloquence on the platform. In this role she will be a public benefactress.—Boston Herald.

The southern press is calling upon southern managers not to bill W. C. P. Breckinridge for any lectures. The best way to keep Breckinridge at home is to give him such small audiences that he will be compelled to foot his own bills.—Kansas City Times.

If Breckinridge had any sense of shame, he would not put himself on show. Thus far Miss Pollard has shown more modesty than the aged party of the other part. Breckinridge is not only not ashamed of the role he has played, but he is trying to bank on it.—Wheeling (W. Va.) Intelligencer.

GLADSTONE AT EIGHTY-FIVE.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

No Imitation.

The table roars when Kitty speaks.
She neither halts nor stutters,
And every maid and matron seeks
To catch each word she utters.

"Just like a man!" the girls all say,
And some say, "Even better!"
Who once has heard her fancy play
Can never quite forget her.

But when I hear her praises ring
The wonder, I declare, is
That any girl can do the thing
On plain apollinaris! —Vogue.

The Child and the Man.

Once upon a time it chanced that a Child accosted a Man, saying:

"Papa, may we play in the street?"

The Man replied and spake:

"I should say not. Today is Sunday."

And the Child came back at the Man presently and quoth:

"But, papa, we will call it a sacred concert."

And the Man said nothing, since there was nothing to say.—Detroit Tribune.

The Cheerful Idiot.

The typewriter boarder was in the parlor doing her best to sing "Au Revoir, but Not Goodby," said the cheerful idiot, "that reminds me of a canyon I saw out west."

"Don't see it," remarked the good natured boarder.

"It is such a rocky holler," said the cheerful idiot.—Cincinnati Tribune.

A Woman Still.

In anything men are known to wear
Her wardrobe doesn't lack—
Coats, vests, and pants, and ties, and, there—
She's an andromaniac.

Displaying her fancy shirts,

HOMEMADE DRESSES.

THE DOLMAN MANTLE AND HOW TO CUT IT.

More Elegant Than a Jacket, It Is Easier For an Amateur to Fashion—How to Regulate Length and Width—New Blouse Waists.

[Copyright, 1895, by American Press Association.]

The latest move of importance in dressmaking is the renewal of the dolman cape or mantle without sleeves. These are made long, generally reaching below the knee. They are adapted for evening wraps, for the street and visiting, and they are always more elegant and dressy than any jacket for women. The jacket is better adapted for youth and for ordinary wear.

In making a three-quarter dolman mantle the pattern can be drafted easily from the diagram herewith, the front edge being laid even with the selvage, with as much turned in as may be desired. This, however, must be allowed for before the rest is marked. It will be noticed that on the shoulder seam there is one flattened space that is 4 inches wide, and following the two lines down is to be laid in a plait, which allows for the opening for the hands. The width across the bust from the X marks, aside from the space marked for the plait, should be the size of the bust from the arm size and should be easy, not tight. The circular line shows the rounded shoulder portion. The width of each front at the bottom should depend somewhat on the figure of the wearer, but a good way to get it is to pass a tapeline around the body where the bottom of the mantle will be and get the number of inches, divide it into three, two parts for the fronts and the other for the back.

The back part is cut on the fold of the cloth, and the lower portion is not divided. The jog is to be laid in two flat plaits at the waist line. The center back seam should first be seamed and pressed flat, these plaits laid in and sewed down under neat arrowheads. The front plait should then be laid and stitched to the lining. The lining of the front part should be narrower by the size of the plait than the outside. The lining and outside should be sewed together, turned and pressed. The plait will then fall naturally into place and can be basted and later stitched into place.

The armholes are marked OO and should be cut and bound from the inside. The shoulder seams should then be sewed together, and then the back and front portions basted carefully, beginning from the bottom. The back portion should have been lined and pressed and the seams basted firmly about two inches from the edge to allow the lining on that side to lie back and not be taken in with the seam.

When the backs and fronts are basted together, the upper portion of the circular part will be gathered closely into the space left for it and sewed firmly to the shoulder. The lining all around is left loose from the material, and as soon as the seams are pressed it should be felled down very neatly, the stitches taking hold upon the pressed seams only. Another slight pressing with medium hot irons will add to the smooth appearance of the garment. An ease belt or ribbon is to be fastened at the waist line in the back to hold that snug.

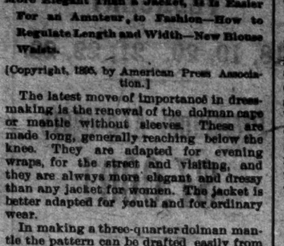

DIAGRAM OF DOLMAN MANTLE.

There remains now the ornamentation. The collar may be a plain turndown, or there may be a high medicis, or, in fact, any kind proving becoming. A sprung or slashed overcape is sometimes added, particularly when the mantle is intended for evening wear, and this is bordered with fur of some kind. When the mantle is made of plush, velvet or heavy silk, a rich trimming of passementerie or heavy lace applique or silk embroidery may be put on, and a border of fine black skunk-skin is always an addition.

When it is desired to lengthen this into a long cloak, all there is to do is to lengthen the lines, always making it a little larger around the bottom, as it is longer. When the garment is made of woolen goods, it must be evenly shrunken before it is made up; otherwise dampness may entirely change its form. When it is desired as a warm winter wrap, it should be interlined with a flexible flannel made for the purpose, or it may be lined with fur, such as Siberian squirrel. Many ladies have old circular capes lined with that fur, and it can be utilized to line a mantle.

The cape, if any, to wear over this style of mantle must fit the shoulders flat and fall smoothly down. When finished, the lady who likes to wear a distinguished and elegant garment will be pleased.

A word may be said on the distinguishing feature of the new blouse waist and how to attain it. There are full gathered fronts and backs, with belts, as usual, but the front of the waist is rounded downward about two to four inches. The fronts are lined somewhat stiffly, and then the gathers, or plaits, as may be, are taken in and sewed to the belt. This sets the front on shoulders, and to these the waist is gathered in Garibaldi style. Others have the sleeves lengthened on the top and the extra length plaited up to the collar in a plait 1¼ inches wide.

OLIVE HARPER.

Rumford's Vindictive Wife.

Count Rumford, the scientist, married Mme. Lavoisier, the widow of a philosopher and herself a devotee of philosophy. In one of his letters still extant poor Rumford wrote, "I have the misfortune to be married to one of the most unfeeling, imperious, tyrannical women that ever existed, whose perseverance in pursuing an object is equal to her profound wickedness and cunning in framing it." When she was vexed, which was nearly all the time, she vented her spleen by breaking the bottles that contained his anatomical specimens, by upsetting his apparatus on the floor, throwing his books out of the windows and pouring boiling water on his botanial collections.

A PICTURESQUE CLIPPER.

When a horse's coat was left the way nature made it, it was easy to distinguish a bay from a sorrel or a dun from a brown. But now fashion dictates that carriage horses must be kept as closely shaven as a convict's pate, and, except black and white ones, they look all of one color. Nature lets their hair grow long in winter so as to protect them from the cold. Fashion says the hair must be clipped off and blankets substituted to keep the horse warm. Fashion has also decreed that the horse's tail must be cut off short and a linen robe put over him to keep flies off.

The illustration shows one of the machines that operate to give the smooth, hairless skin to the city horse. The only thing that can be said in favor of clipping the equine coat is that during the shedding season it prevents flying hairs from covering the carriage and harness and even getting inside upon my lady's hat. But when the animals are shaved off smooth and driven in bitter midwinter weather without blankets, as they are sometimes, then fashion becomes barbarous cruelty. The clipping instrument that the barber uses to shave men's heads in summer is constructed on the same principle as the horse clipper.

Horse and Colt Feed.

To begin, it is essential in order to obtain the greatest growth for the least outlay that all grain should be fed bruised and in conjunction with cut or chopped hay. A hay cutter should form a part of every farm's equipment. A large bin should be constructed on the main floor of the feedhouse.

The grain grinder may be set on the ground floor, as the ground feed is more easily handled from the mill than the cut hay. Hay cutters are operated at such high speed that unless there is a hole in the floor, through which the machine may be relieved of its product by the simple force of gravitation, floor room is rapidly taken up and loss of time ensues. It pays the owner of any large number of horses to grind his own grain and cut his own hay. Either a tread power, sweep power or a small engine may be used to advantage, the engine being the most convenient. Bran also should be largely used in compounding a ration for young, growing horses or brood mares, and at its present prices, $12 to $13 per ton, it is economical food. In feeding the colts the object is to produce bone and muscle.

Ground oats and barley are the best muscle makers and fed with cut hay bran and a little linseed meal will give very satisfactory results. The last named food is, as is well known, a byproduct of the linseed oil mills and can be obtained at a very moderate figure. A pound per day for each colt will, in the course of the winter, add greatly to the nutriment derived from coarser grains and keep the colt's stomach in good condition. It must be laid down as beyond the possibility of contradiction that to stint the colts or brood mares in their feed because grain is high in price is a suicidal policy and one the effects of which will be felt on the farm for many a long season. For this reason true economy is in feeding judiciously. This is achieved by feeding the colts a ration of ground barley and oats, bran and cut hay. The mass should be slightly dampened, but not fed sloppy by any means. In the coldest of the winter days some ground corn may be used in place of one or other of the grains mentioned. It makes a change, and being heating may be used to advantage for a few days.

Roots should be fed in abundance, both boiled and raw. Rutabagas, turnips or carrots are all keenly relished by horses and have a very beneficial effect on their stomachs. To the evening feed some boiled roots may be added and fed regularly with great relish. Rutabagas are the best for this purpose. Carrots also do very well cooked, but as they are very palatable a few fed raw with the morning or noon ration form a welcome change. This year the feeding of wheat to horses has become somewhat general, and if the present prices of this great staple product are to remain below 60 cents it may be that it will come into general use as a horse food. It is not likely that wheat will ever be used by itself, either ground or whole, as a horse food, but it may be that it can be profitably fed in conjunction with some of the other feeds we have mentioned. An abundant supply of roughage should be given the colts, and the greater the variety offered them the better progress will they make. With weanlings the racks should not be stuffed full and the colts left to work away at them for days until they get them emptied. A well bred weanling is a dainty feeder, which fact should be noted and taken advantage of in this way. If a little hay is given them often, they will eat more of it, as it will not be breathed on and pulled about as it is if a lot of it is left with them for any length of time.

Nicely cured corn fodder, cut at the right time and not too coarse, is readily eaten by all horses, and if run through a shredder and stored in the barn is a most economical food. Prairie or even marsh hay makes an appetizing change from the regulation timothy, and good first crop clover may be fed with the very best results to colts of all ages.—Horseman.

THE CYNIC.

So many people mistake felony for folly.

Some people make a living out of other people's curiosity.

Every man is full of philosophy which he is unable to apply to his own necessities.

Unless a pretty woman has sense her bait is constantly surrounded by fish that never bite.

When the women stop insisting that a woman is not pretty, it is a good sign that she is falling off in her looks.

Raising children is like making biscuits—it is no easy to raise a big batch as one biscuit while you have your hands in the dough.—Atchison Globe.

SOME FRENCH MAXIMS.

To translate a book is to undress ideas.

To talk loud and firmly is to use the arguments of fools.

Moral thoughts improve nobody, not even the person who writes them.

Lack of logic is one of the conditions of charm. Martyrs lack irony, and this is an unpardonable fault, because without irony the world would be similar to a forest without birds. Irony is the gayety of reflection and the joy of wisdom.—"French Folly In Maxims," H. P. Du Bois.

GOOD HEALTH

FRIGOTHERAPEUTICS.

A New Way to Get Up an Appetite—The Ice Cure For Dyspepsia.

Professor Pictet is reported by the French exchanges to have put before the Academy of Medicine the whole system of frigotherapeutics. He began by experimenting on dogs and found that when they were plunged into a bath at low temperature and when kept there for some time they became ravenously hungry. Being himself a sufferer from stomach disease, he had forgotten what it was to have an appetite. So he descended into the refrigerating tank at a temperature many degrees below zero. He wrapped a thick pelisse and other warm clothes about him, but after four minutes he began to feel hungry. At the end of eight minutes he climbed out of the tank with a painfully keen appetite. Many such experiments were made. All meals taken after a short stay in the refrigerator agreed with him. He found that his dyspepsia was cured after the tenth descent.

Certain French physicians are also reported as having cured colds by applying ice to the spine.

ETIQUETTE

FADS AND FANCIES.

Society Levies New Taxes—Debutantes' Bouquets—Engagement Presents.

The recent receptions in honor of debutantes have been characterized by a lavish display of bouquets. Thus far this season great extravagance has been shown by the admirers of the debutantes in sending congratulations in the form of flowers, according to New York exchanges. One recent debutante received during the afternoon 40 bouquets of carefully selected flowers, and one of the bouquets was entirely of rare orchids. Vases gave out, and the floral expressions of admiration were piled on the piano, on the mantels and in chairs. One well known matron expended in one week $250 for debutante bouquets. The custom of giving engagement presents is also growing and has become a large item in the expense accounts of men and women of society. The custom appears to have been taken into high favor in Boston, where, upon the recent announcement of the engagement of a well known society girl, she received 75 engagement presents. In fashionable society also every effort is made that the gift for a wedding shall be original. Recently at one swell wedding one lady had made to order and sent to the bride a gold matchbox studded with precious stones. Another woman sent a coffeepot made of ivory and gold after designs of her own fashioning.

Pitfalls of Card Etiquette.

When an unmarried lady is calling on a married couple with daughters, what cards should she leave? She can leave one for the mother and one for the daughters, if friends of hers, or one for the mother, with the corner turned down, but she must not leave a card for the husband, because ladies do not leave cards upon married men, and only upon bachelors and widowers after entertainments given by them, at which they have been present.

The Gentlewoman.

A gentlewoman smiles, but never laughs. She talks, but never questions. She is interested and sympathetic, but never presuming. She is so soft of voice that but one in an audience may hear her speech. She is clean, kind and quiet—quiet in her dress, her manner, her step and her speech. She is restful. She is good. She is womanly.

CHICAGO'S SEARCHLIGHT.

A $30 blackmailing story seems to be the best that the Chicago Lexow reformers can turn out, and this g—r C—go.—Council Bluffs Nonpareil.

The attention of the country is likely to be attracted soon to Chicago, where arrangements are being made to begin a police investigation similar to that in New York city. There are no activities in which Chicago may not hope to become a distinguished success.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Encyclopædia Britannica is not only a complete compendium of all knowledge, but it is a dictionary of biography, a record of inventions, a history of discoveries, a calendar of dates, a registry of events, a glossary of technical and scientific terms, a collection of mathematical, chemical, and mechanical formulas, a handbook of law, a medical guide.

Best At as in the World,

The most thorough and reliable key to business knowledge, a manual of games, sports and amusements, a theranus of statistics, a history of all countries and people, a storehouse of criticism, a treasury of curious learning, a vade mecum for the household and farm, as for the office and library, a repertory of useful information. If the professional or the business man should undertake to put upon his library shelves the special treaties, which would cover as wide a range of topics as those gathered in the Britannica, relating to his own pursuits, his purchases would extend over scores of volumes, some of them rare and expensive, and many of them not brought down to date.

Of all the works of reference now in the market, the Encyclopædia Britannica is not only the most comprehensive, but by far the cheapest, even at

The Original Price of $8 Per Volume.

Heretofore this work could be obtained only at a great cost—from $125 to $200. It is now, for the first time, placed within reach of the masses. A saving of only 15 cents a day gives you this never-failing fountain of knowledge. Is it not worth such a slight effort to obtain it?

The STAR will for a short time furnish this great work in Cloth binding at $1.60 per volume; in full sheep at $2.30 per volume, and will deliver the whole set upon payment of $5 cash, giving you long time to pay the balance.

The purchase of any Encyclopædia short of the best is not only bad judgment, but worse economy. The STAR will furnish you this, the greatest literary production of the century, at one-third the former price and on terms so accommodating that none need deny themselves the great advantage of owning this mine of information. SPOTS AND FUTURES

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The Sun says: Cotton advanced two to four points, but weakened at one time. The close was one to two poins higher for the day and quiet, with sales of 38,100 bales. February notices are due on Thursday. Not many are expected, Bolton, England, manufacturers will reduce wages 5 per cent. if 80 per cent. of the manufacturers will agree to do so. A short time ago the consolidated port stock was 100 000 bales less than at the same time last year. Now it is 94,000 bales more than then. There is a rumor of possible short time in New England. The Texas State report, dated February 14, says that the ground is in a favorble condition for ploughing and planting crops of all kinds. Liverpool advanced one point to-day but lost it and closed steady. Spot sales 80,000 at firm and unchanged prices. Manchester was quiet. Exports from the ports to day 11,818. to the Continent. New Orleans declined one point for May and then recovered it. The receipts at the ports to-day were 14,606, against 34 496 this day last week and 17 659 last year; thus far this week 35,658, against 75,911 for the same time last week. The total for the week is estimated at 90,000, against 141 002 last week and 83,627 last year. New Orleans receipts to-morrow are estimated at 5 000 to 7,000 bales, against 14,569 last Wednesday and 6,975 last year.

To-day's features: The light receipts at the ports and the unexpectedly firm Liverpool advices pushed up the prices a little in spite of some weakness in Liverpool later on and selling here by New Orleans. New Orleans was voluble in bull talk, but sent selling orders just the same, and the market down there was not so firm as in New York by any means. The receipts there tomorrow are expected to be comparatively light, however, and the total for all ports this week is now expected to be 80,000 bales less than that of last week. So prices advanced, though many dropped March and took later positions, and there were larger offerings of spot cotton by the South, to say nothing of the expectation of larger receipts at the ports and the interior towns when the roads improves. Still there are those who believe in the old maxim: "They laugh best, who laugh last." They belive that the evils of the present system will bring their own remedy. And this remedy will be, they think, a reduced consumption of fleeces and a diminished acreage. In fact the prevalent idea is that a rise just now must be from the very nature of the case temporary, inasmuch as it is believed that there is a large quantity of cotton to come forward which cold weather and bad roads cannot destroy, though they retard the work of transportation. There are some plucky bulls however, who are full of fight and are only bidiog their time. They seem to be acting on the maxim that "patience is bitter, but its fruit is sweet."

GRAIN AND PORVISIONS.

Wheat Closed Lower—Corn Higher—Pork Products Somewhat Lower.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, February 18.—Bradstreet's reported a decrease in the world's visible sapply of 2,880,000 bushels, without practically moving prices. The weakness at the opening was owing to the heavy receipts in the Northwest—550 cars. May wheat opened from 53⅛c to 53⅛@53⅝c, sold 53c and 53½c, closing at toe latter—⅛@¼c under yesterday. Cash wheat was dull, without change in quotations.

Corn—Bradstreet's reported a decrease in the available stocks of 322 000 bushels. May corn opened from 44⅜c to 44⅝@44⅝c, sold between 44⅜@44⅜c and 44⅛@44⅜c, closing at the inside—⅛@⅜c under yesterday. Cash corn was firm and ⅛@⅜c higher, closing nominally easy.

Oats clung tenaciously to the one price, 29 cents for the day, only advancing a fraction above and declining a fraction lower in a few instances, but finally closing at 28⅜c—¼c under yesterday. The absence of trade explained the narrowness of the range, the tone being derived from wheat and corn. Bradstreet's reported a reduction in stocks of 235,000 bushels. Fresh oats were ¼c per bushel higher, closing easy.

Provisions—The notable feature in the product was the buying which was said to be for Pardridge. If the high-roller was attempting to bull this market he met with poor success, the offerings at all times being quite large enough to accommodate buyers with a little over. The hog market was firm early and served to steady provisions, but a later report from the yards was less favorable and caused an easier feeling. At the close may pork was 5c. lower than yesterday; May lard a shade lower, and May ribs 2½c. lower. Receipts were smaller, the shipments free. Domestic and foreign markets were steady.

CONGRESS YESTERDAY.

SENATOR VILAS' SPEECH IN DEFENCE OF PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

The Free Silver Coinage Bill Under Consideration—Conference Report on the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation Bill Agreed to—Other Appropriation Bills Considered in the House.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Senator Vilas made a long, able and eloquent speech in the Senate to-day in defence of the President of the United States, and his Secretary of the Treasury in the matter of the sale of $62,000,000 of four per cent. bonds for gold. The speech was made on the bill before the Senate for free coinage of silver, but had no reference whatever to that bill. Mr. Vilas showed that the President had endeavored to get Congress to act upon the financial difficulties in which the Treasury had found itself by the drainage of gold and that as Congress had declined to act, he had to avail himself of the power which the existing laws gave him and to buy gold by the issue of bonds. The price obtained for the bonds, Mr. Vilas contended, was the highest that could be obtained under the circumstances; or, in other words, 8¾ per cent. was the lowest rate of interest at which the bonds would be taken by the great banking houses which had been applied to. Three and five-eighths per cent. had been offered in all the great money centres and had been refused, and all because the bonds did not provide specifically repayment in gold coin.

After Mr. Vilas' speech Mr. Platt made a speech against the free silver bill itself.

An effort was made by Mr. Jones to have a time fixed for taking the final vote on the bill, but as its antagonist refused to fix any time the debate went on, and Mr. Platt is at this hour, 7 p. m., engaged in arguing against the bill.

Another proposition to have the vote taken to-morrow was made by Mr. Jones and objected to by Mr. Aldrich who said when the bill was first introduced by Mr. Jones it contained nine sections, including one for the issue of $500 000,000 in bonds and one for the retirement of greenbacks, and he thought that the Senate was entitled to an explanation as as to why those eight sections had been abandoned. As all attempts to have an hour fixed for taking the vote met with objection, Mr. Platt went on with his speech. He gave it as his belief, in which he knew many of his Republican associates would not agree with him, that the vice of the whole financial situation in the country lay in the paper currency issued by the Government.

There was an unusually large attendance of Senators this morning, probably in view of the expected contest over the Free Silver Coinage bill, and the galleries were also well filled with interested spectators. The routine morning business, however, consumed the first half hour with matters of little public concern.

A conference report on the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill was presented and agreed to. All the differences between the two Houses on that bill have been arranged except as to the appropriation of $500 000 to begin the construction of the cable to Hawaii, on which the conferees were unable to agree. A further conference was ordered on that item.

The Senate passed a bill to aid in the erection of a monument to the Maryland heroes of the Revolutionary war. It appropriates $40,000 to be expended by the Maryland Society of the American Revolution, to aid in erecting in Baltimore a suitable monument to the memory of the patriots who died in establishing the independence of the United States.

The credentials of Mr. Wilson, the new Senator from the State of Washington, were presented and he was sworn in, thus completing the full Senate membership to 87.

Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, then moved to take up the regular order, his free coinage bill, and it was agreed to—36 to 27. Then the tug of war was on. The bill was read in full. In the opening skirmish, Mr. Jones said, the friends of his bill were willing to put the matter to a test now without a word of debate.

It was apparent, however, that no vote could be taken at once nor at any time that could be definitely stated, so Mr. Jones said he had only to request that the debate would proceed as rapidly as possible, and that the vote must be had at the earliest possible hour. He would, therefore, ask the Senate to remain in session to-day until a vote was got if that could be accomplished.

The general debate was opened by Mr. Vilas, the tenor of his remarks being given above. While Mr. Vilas was speaking Mr. Aldrich sought to read a dispatch just received, but Mr. Vilas declined to yield for that purpose. The dispatch he intended to read was as follows:

"London, Feb 19—The prospectus for the new bonds was issued at 6 p. m. here. It is for $62 000 000, one-half to be placed in America and the other half in London. The issue price here is 115½, or 227 pounds per $1 000. Ten per cent. of the price is payable on application. Payments are to be completed in four installments, ending July 23d. The lists will open Wednesday and close Thursday or sooner.

[Signed] DOW JONES & Co."

Mr. Vilas concluded his argument with the declaration that "The people of the United States love their honor as they prize their liberty, and their sober judgment never has tolerated and never will tolerate the National reproach of the least equivocation in dealing with its creditors. That gentleman never lived, however high bred, honorable and chivalrous, whose sense of honor was keener, higher or more sensitive than the public opinion of the free men of America."

Mr. Vilas spoke for nearly four hours and commanded close attention all through his speech. When he took his seat Mr. Squire (Rep., Wash) went to the clerk's desk and had read the Act of June 25th, 1878, expressly declaring that all U. S. bonds payable in coin should be paid in gold or silver coin at the option of the Government. That act, he said, was a full and complete answer to the entire argument of the Senator from Wisconsin.

A conference report on the bill as to the time when income tax returns are to be made was presented and explained by Mr. Vest and agreed to.

Mr. Platt then took the floor to speak against the bill and has held it until this writing, with occasional interruptions by members who sought to terminate the debate either by coming to a vote or to an adjournment.

At 8 p. m. the Republican opponents of the Silver bill began a system of obstruction tactics under the lead of Mr Aldrich. He moved that the Senate proceed to Executive business and while the Senate was waiting for the appearance of a quorum, negotiations were being carried on for a way out of the difficulty, and the sucess of these negotiations of which Mr. Cockrell was the principal manager, was apparent when, at 9 p. m., a quorum being secured, the motion for an Executive session was withdrawn by Mr. Aldrich, and the following resolution was offered by Mr. Wolcott, (being the one agreed upon among the negotiators):

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that the welfare and prosperity of the United States require the enactment of a law for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1.

Resolved, That in view of the fact that this Congress will expire by law on the 4th of March, and that there are important appropriations bills requiring the attention of the Senate, it is the sense of the Senate that the consideration of such a law be not entered upon at this session of Congress.

"Let that resolution lie over till to-morrow and be printed," said Mr. Jones, of Arkansas.

The resolution went over and the Senate at 9 p m, on motion of Mr. Jones, adjourned until to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Another day was spent in consideration of the Naval Appropriation bill without disposing of it. The proceedings were marked by several spirited passages between Mr. Sayers, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations and members of the Committee on Naval Affairs over amendments offered by the former to reduce the amounts carried in the bill. Only in two of these was the Texas member successful, and then the amounts were insignificant. At the beginning of the consideration of the bill Chairman O'Neil (Democrat, Massachusetts) overruled the point of order made yesterday by Mr. Sayers against the proposed increase of the force of enlisted men in the Navy, holding that it was in order, notwithstanding existing statutes limiting the number to 9,000 men. From this ruling Mr. Sayers appealed, but the Committee of the Whole sustained the Chair—143 to 87. And against this Mr. Sayers uttered his earnest protest.

In the course of the day several other important matters were acted upon by the House. The joint resolution reported yesterday by the Committee on Ways and Means, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to suspend the shipment in bond through the United States of goods destined for the free zone of Mexico, was passed.

A conference was agreed to on the Agricultural Appropriation bill. The report of the conference upon the joint resolution extending from March 1 to April 15, 1895, the time within income tax returns may be made, was agreed to.

The statement of the conferees was as follows: "The effect of the action on the first amendment of the Senate is to allow the owner of real estate to deduct the amount necessarily paid for fire insurance from the income from the same, when making his return. It applies only to real estate. It does not enlarge in other respects the amount of deductions that may be made. Under the income tax law deduction might be made for necessary repairs, but not for betterments. This provision remains and is not enlarged by the amendments agreed upon.

"The effect of the second amendment is to require corporations to return the tax list of corporate property and relieve the individual of the necessity of doing so. It is agreed to by the conferees to prevent the possibility of double taxation. Whilst the law guarded against this, it was thought not improper to add any additional assurance thereof that was necessary. The amendment added by the conferees to the second amendment frees employers from the necessity for returning the names and salaries of their employes except when called for by the collector to verify the returns of employes. For the purpose the right will still exist.

From the third amendment (limiting interrogatories tax-payers shall be required to answer to those specifically provided in the act) the Senate conferees recede. This was thought best not only for the Government but for the tax-payers.

The House at 5.10 adjourned until to-morrow.

Terms Offered by the Southern Railway Company Rejected by Its Employes.

(By Telegraph to the Morning Star.)

WASHINGTON, February 19.—The committee of employes of the Southern Railway Company, which has been in session in Washington for nearly a week, has been unable to come to an agreement with the representatives of the railway company. The company, through its third vice-president, Mr. Baldwin, made a very full and frank statement of the affairs of the company, any showed why it was not advisable that there should be a general increase in wages as demanded by the employes. Since receiving the statement the employes' committee has been in secret session and has finally concluded not to accept the schedule proposed by Mr. Baldwin, and the grand chiefs of the various Trainmen Brotherhoods have been summoned to this city, to assist, if possible, in arriving at a satisfactory arrangement of the difficulty. These men are expected to arrive here to-night. Those into whose hands the matter now passes are Mr. P. M. Arthur Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; Mr. E E Clark, Grand Chief of the Locomotive Railway Conductors; Mr. Wilkinson, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and P. F. Sargeant, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Firemen.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

A Prominent Business Man of Baltimore Who Had Been Guilty of Fraudulent Practices.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

BALTIMORE, February 19.—The suicide a few weeks ago of Wm. W. Crozier, a prominent business man of this city, was at the time generally attributed to temporary insanity. It developed today that he had been guilty of fraudulent practices and is believed committed suicide rather than face disgrace.

Mr. Crosier was the only surviving member of the firm of H. S. Lanlair & Co., and a large dealer in canned goods. Throughout the Winter he was a bull in the market, and just previous to his death stored thousands of cases, obtaining warehouse receipts therefor. The receipts he hypothecated, receiving large advances from banks. When 50,000 cases of goods, on storage in Brown's warehouse were overhauled, it was discovered that over 5,000 cases supposed to contain cove oysters were filled with tomatoes and corn. The packer says he was instructed by Mr. Crosier to stencil the cases as containing oysters. The loss through this fraud will be about $10,000. Meantime the investigation is going on, but the system of lending money to fruit and oyster packers on goods in storage has received a severe shock. The banks will not be able to recover their losses from the estate.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, February 19.—Proposals were opened at the Navy Department to-day for the construction, exclusive of armament and torpedoes, of three metallic, twin-screw, seagoing torpedo boats of about 138 tons displacement, with a speed of 24½ knots maintained for at least two consecutive hours. The appropriation of Congress allows $460,000 for the construction of the three vessels, which, with all their materials, must be wholly of domestic manufacture. Proposals of two classes were permitted, one being strictly to the plans and specifications of the Navy Department and the other upon designs of the bidders fulfilling the conditions of speed and economy prescribed by the Department. The proposals will all be referred to a board of Bureau officers, including Chief Constructor Hichborn, Engineer-in-Chief Melville and Judge Advocate-General Lemly, who will report to Secretary Herbert on the plans, and it is not expected that the contracts will be awarded for at least a month.

The bidders are the Bath Iron Works, of Bath, Maine; Dialogue & Son, Camden, N. J.; Columbian Iron Works, Baltimore; Hugh Ramsey, Perth Amboy, N. J.; Union Iron Works, San Francisco; Fulton Engineering and Ship-Building Works, San Francisco; Iowa Iron Works, Dubuque, Ia.; Herreshoffs, of Bristol, R. I. Naval officers are highly gratified over the results of the competition which show that the boats will cost less money than was expected.

The contract price for the Cushing, 105 tons, was $88 780, or $788 per ton; for the Ericsson, 120 tons, $118 560, or $948 per ton, while the lowest bid for the new vessels of 138 tons is $79 800, or $706 per ton. The proposals will be thoroughly examined and the modified plans considered before an award is recommended. The bids of the Bath Iron Works, J. H. Dialogue & Son, Fulton Engineering Works and the Iowa Iron Works, it is thought, will be laid aside as too high. The lowest bidders have already furnished the navy with the cruisers Detroit, Montgomery, and Petrel, all satisfactory ships.

BOYCOTT DECLARED

Against the Seaboard Air Line by Commissioner Stahlman of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ATLANTA GA., February 19.—A boycott has been declared against the Seaboard Air Line railway system by Commissioner Stahlman, of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association. The Commissioner states in his circular that the Seaboard, including the Georgia, Carolina and Northern, has not maintained rates on cotton. He says that during the past two months sweeping irregularities, manipulations and rate-cutting had been indulged in by this system on Western traffic embraced in classes C, D and F.

A Seaboard official denies the charges of manipulation and is quoted as saying that the Seaboard can stand the boycott if the Association can.

BALTIMORE, February 19—R. C. Hoffman, president of the Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., said to-night that he had received no official advices touching the boycott of his company by the Southern Railway and Steamship Association. He stated that none of the charges of rate-cutting and irregularities frequently made against the Seaboard Company had been sustained; at least he was not aware of such action by the Association. In the absence of more definite information, Mr. Hoffman declined to further discuss the subject.

The boycott was not treated seriously by other railway officials. It is stated that while the Seaboard Company was not a member of the Southern Association, it has maintained a pro-rating arrangement. There is said to have been considerable friction during the past year, and as a result it is claimed that the Association is practically dismembered. Commissioner Stahlman's action is looked upon by some railroad men as an effort to force the Seaboard Company into the Association to prevent its final dissolution.

RACE WAR IMMINENT

In Harris County, Georgia—Further Developments Awaited With Uneasiness.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

SAVANNAH, February 19.—A Morning News special from Atlanta says: A race war is imminent in Waverly Hall district, in Harris county. The negroes of that section have recently aroused the suspicion of the white people by secret gatherings late at night, and later by making open threats.

To-day Gov. Atkinson received a letter from T. H. Kimbrough, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Fourth Congressional district, in this letter Mr. Kimbrough states that the only thing which has seemed to deter the negroes so far has been the fear of the military company of Harris, "The Gordon Troop." That a preconcerted arrangement was made to destroy the effectiveness of the military company, he says, is evinced by the fact that during the early morning of February 14th the house of Capt. J. S. Clark, the commander of the Gordon Troop, the place where the arms, sabres, and ammunition of this company were stored, was set on fire, and together with its entire contents were destroyed. To bring the incendiaries to justice the Governor is appealed to to offer rewards for their capture. The situation at the present does not warrant the sending of other troops to the scene, but further developments are awaited with considerable uneasiness in the Governor's office.

Gov. Atkinson at once took the matter up and the reward will be offered just as soon as the papers can be properly made out.

Is There Any Reason

In the word why the one price cash Racket Store should not sell goods as cheap or cheaper than any house in the city. We sell our goods as we advertise them, the quality and width as described. We have been in this city very near seven years and have not lost all told one hundred dollars by credit customers. With a record as clean as this, with men to run the business that know no rule but to work and attend to every branch of the business, with the cash to buy goods from the manufacturers and auctions, and every where that there can be a real bargain found. Read our prices. Come and look at our stock and be convinced. We will treat you right.

One thousand Felt Sailor Hats, all colors, at 25c each, former price 50c; banded with sweat band for 35c, worth first of season $1 00. A big lot of Silk Ribbon received—No. 5 at 5c per yard, No. 12 at 10c, No. 22 at 18c and No. 40 at 25c. This lot of Ribbon is of the newest shades of color and is at least 40 per cent. lower than we have ever been able to sell it before. Table Linen, we have extra value. In Towels we have the different styles; a large Cotton Towel at 5c, extra large at 10c. A fine Linen Towel 18x36 inches at 33⅓c each.

A big lot of Ladies' fast black seamless Hose at 10c. Ladies' ribbed Hose, fast black at 10c. A fine line of good Satteen worth 10c. now 8⅓c. New goods, no old stock. Come and try us and see if we don't have what you want at the Big Racket Store of Wilmington, N. C.
